If I were a tree planted for the Queen's Jubilee
Where might I grow, what might I see?
Could I help our world become a better place to be?

Thousands of trees are being planted to celebrate our Queen's 70th year, her Platinum Jubilee.

What impact could they have on us as people and on our planet?

Imagine being an actual tree. What would that be like?

Write an original story of up to 500 words in which you imagine you're one of the trees planted this year as part of the Queen's Jubilee Green Canopy

Competition deadline Friday June 17th

submit entries through the library or your participating primary school

If your story is one of the winning stories, you'll be invited to Sidmouth Festival to collect your prize and may get to read your story aloud on the festival stage
